Is foreign help enough to fix Iraq's energy problems?

Foreign help is not enough to fix energy issues, domestic reform is necessary. This past July, Iraq and France's TotalEnergies finalized the Gas Growth Integrated Project, a $27 billion energy deal aimed at Iraq's natural resources and improving the country's electricity supply.

Does Iraq have a reliable electricity grid?

Now, two decades after the 2003 US invasion, Iraq has failed to see improvements in the electricity infrastructure. Although the disparity between supply and demand is widening due to population increase and rising temperatures, corruption remains the largest obstacle to a reliable electricity grid.

Why is Iraq's energy system vulnerable?

However the capacity to capture and process this gas has not kept pace. The inability to utilise its gas riches means that the country's gas deficit has grown, and Iraq now relies on imports from Iran to meet increasing demand. This has introduced a number of vulnerabilities to Iraq's energy system.

Will Iraq be able to connect to the GCC electricity grid?

Another planned power initiative aims to connect Iraq to the GCC electrical grid. This endeavor envisions delivering 1.8 gigawatts of electricity by 2025, stretching from the al-Wafra station in Kuwait to Iraq's Al-Faw station in the south.

Can Iraq achieve energy self-sufficiency without regional aid?

However, the path to energy sufficiency remains a considerable challenge for Iraq even with regional aid. Without domestic reforms to address the underlying causes of the energy crisis, Iraq's journey towards achieving energy self-sufficiency is still a considerable distance away.

Does Iraq need more foreign investment?

Iraq has struck a major deal with France's TotalEnergies company, bringing in $27 billion in foreign investment to build up natural resource development and electricity supply. Iraq has long desired greater foreign direct investment. Its new government inherited the work of predecessors and is finally seeing results.

6 ¶; Iraq faces an incredible need for power, especially during the scorching summer months when temperatures can soar above 50°C. The country's electricity demand peaks during these times, driven by the need for air conditioning, cooling systems, and other essential services.

This is important because energy use is around 50% of the cost structure for desalination and Iraq continues efforts to reduce "barrel burn" in thermal power plants to free up oil for export. While the burning of fuel is used for MSF, both MSF and RO have high electricity requirements but even by this metric, RO is more efficient.
